LARGEST DAMAGE SUIT FILED

HOTEL SYSTEM ASKS $125,000 AGAINST E. S. KELLY IN SUIT

Claims Food Booths Ruined Business Of Arcade Hotel

The largest suit for damages ever filed in Common Pleas Court here was a matter of record Tuesday.

Edwin S. Kelly, retired Springfield manufacturer and capitalist, of "Whitehall," Yellow Springs, was sued for $125,000 damages by The Stephens Hotel System, Inc., former operator of the Arcade Hotel in Springfield, the corporation charging the business of its Springfield hostelry was ruined after Kelly had leased an arcade through the center of the building for use as a food market in May, 1930.

The petition alleges that the unpleasant odor produced from vegetable, meat, fish and fruit booths proved offensive to hotel guests, particularly those occupying rooms on the second floor, which have windows opening into the arcade.

Hotel patrons, compelled to constantly inhale obnoxious smells arising from the produce stands, could not occupy their rooms with any degree of comfort and gradually quit patronizing the hostelry, the petition claims. As a consequence, business was ruined and the company was forced to suspend operations February 13 last the petition recites.

The claim is made that the hotel was being operated at a net profit of about $1,000 a month prior to the installation of the food market in the arcade and that the amount of damages sought is based upon the estimated net revenue contemplated for the term of the lease.

The petition sets forth that Kelly is the owner of the Arcade Bldg., three-story structure situated at Fountain and Washington Sts. in the heart of Springfield's business district. The interior of the building had been equipped and operated as a hotel with an arcade, or vacant space, that formerly had been used only as a means of egress and ingress by hotel guests.

Harry Russo, who held a lease given him by the Arcade Hotel Co., August 22, 1927, and extending for ten years, had assigned the lease to the Stephens system, April 15, 1929. Under terms of the lease given Russo, the annual rental was to be $10,000 for the first year, $11,000 for the second year, and $12,000 for each of the remaining eight years, the lease expiring August 31, 1937. Kelly, it is also explained, owns a greater part of the capital stock of the Arcade Hotel Co.

The Stephens system took possession and began operating the hostelry April 15, 1929. In May, 1930, despite a written protest of the Stephens company, the contrary to provisions of the lease, Kelly began the installation of a food market in the arcade, according to the petition.

Although the Stephens company advised Kelly its business would be ruined because of the unpleasant odors continually emanating from the produce stands, the installation was completed and the hostelry continued to operate. As a result of loss of patronage, the company lost all the profit it would otherwise have made, it is alleged.

The petition was signed by Charles R. Bowersox, Toledo, secretary of the Stephens Hotel System, Inc. The suit was filed by Attorneys C. L. Darlington, Xenia, and Deeds and Cole, Toledo.

MERCHANT ROBBED OF $1,200 BY PAIR

CLEVELAND, June 30.—Two gunmen ambushed Jack Petreck, a wholesale fruit merchant, in the garage of his home here today and robbed him of $1,200 at the point of gun.

All of the loot except $50 was in cash. Petreck told police he had intended to bank the money today. Petreck was leaving his home to drive to his store in the Woodland Avenue wholesale district. As he entered his garage to get his automobile, one of the bandits poked a gun at him while the other man took his money.

Both men fled in an automobile parked nearby and believed to have been driven by a third man. Police began an immediate search for the bandits.

MYSTERY SHOOTING

DAYTON, O., June 30.—Authorities here today were investigating the mysterious shooting of Norman Martin, 30, negro, who was slain while walking along the streets of Crown Point beyond the outskirts of the city.

Prisoner Gets Freedom After 23 Years Behind "Big House" Walls For Murder

COLUMBUS, O., June 30.—After serving twenty-three years for wife murder—Roosevelt was president, the horse was king, the World War was six years away, and prohibition was not yet a statewide issue when he was sentenced in 1908—Mart Brown, 55, of Van Wert County, today was a free man by the order of Governor George White.

A study of his prison record which showed only two minor violations in all the twenty-three years last night led the governor to commute Brown's sentence to expire at once.

Brown promptly left the prison to join a daughter who was still a child when he allegedly poisoned her mother. He also expected to visit soon his other children, also now grown-up adults, who have frequently attempted to win his liberty.

Although the case attracted wide interest in Van Wert County in 1908, the jury recommended mercy and many requests for executive clemency had been received before action was taken.

Edward S. Matthias, now a judge of the Ohio supreme court, was the common pleas judge who sentenced him, and Harry L. Conn, later a supreme court judge and twice state superintendent of insurance, was the prosecutor.

Since 1925 Brown had been at the London prison farm. His only violations of prison rules in twenty-three years, according to his record card, were "wasting salt" on March 19, 1918, and the carrying of a glass of beans to his cell on Feb. 11 of the same year.

LET'S LOVE COOL

CHICAGO, June 30.—It's the heat. When Willard Robinson failed to keep an engagement with Miss Johanna Donnelly Thursday night she asked police to search for him. They found him in a bathtub at his home where he explained he had been sitting reading magazines since the hot weather began.

METHODIST CHURCH APPROVES PLAN TO AID BIRTH CONTROL

Says Distribution Of Information Is Church Function

DELAWARE, O., June 30.—Distribution of birth control information by the church, even in the face of severe criticism, today carried the approval of ministers and lay leaders of the Methodist Episcopal Church gathered here from all of the country for a study conference.

A report adopted at the meeting declares that "it is time that some pioneering religious body take the leadership in a humane and righteous campaign for the education of the people in the ethics of birth control."

As drawn up by Dr. Wilson G. Cole of Brooklyn, the report adds that "it is becoming increasingly clear to many leaders of Christian thought that the proper guidance and most reliable information in this vital subject should come either from the church or with the sanction of the church."

Those at the conference admitted that the picture of the church in the role of distributor of birth control information would strike fear in the hearts of many of its members.

"The church must not be diverted from the task of getting the most helpful information about marriage to her youth, even though she may be criticized in the process," the report adds. The information would be distributed to fully married couples by physicians and trained social workers.

The report flatly stated that "it is ethical to determine the coming of children to husband and wife by choice rather than by chance, a choice which has in mind the safeguarding of the health of the mother and the highest development of the child and the best interests of family life."

Distribution by the church of information for the instruction of persons about to marry, emphasizing in the church of the responsibility of parents to instruct their children in sex problems, and the addition of a course in the study of the family and the home for candidates for the ministry also were recommended in the report.

The group that adopted the report included about 350 ministers and laymen, both men and women. Several of the laymen were college and university professors.

FIRE CHIEF ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

CINCINNATI, O., June 30.—Long illness from a nerve disorder today was believed responsible for the suicide yesterday of Joseph A. Geller, 53, chief of the Norwood Fire Department, by the revolver in his mouth and firing a bullet through his head, according to Coroner M. S. Kearns.

DIES AFTER PARTY

POMEROY, O., June 30.—Mrs. Ann Mainwaring, 85, of Syracuse, was found dead at her home today. Last night several of her friends surprised her with a birthday party.

BYSTANDER KILLED

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 30.—Wallace, 36, of Seneca, was dead here today as the result of an accident in which two trucks collided, ran off the road and hit him while he was sitting on a fence.

FAMED WICKERSHAM COMMISSION PASSES OUT OF EXISTENCE

BELLE'S IN AGAIN

Reno must forego the pleasure of Belle Livingston's services as night club hostess, temporarily, at least, until she straightens out charges of evading a dressmaker's bill, in New York. Miss Livingston was arrested in Rochester, N. Y., enroute to Reno, then returned to New York. Photo shows her following the arrest in Rochester. She calls the allegations absurd.

TO EVICT STRIKERS FROM HOMES OWNED BY MINING COMPANY

Hunger March In Ohio Faces Opposition Is Learned

WHEELING, W. Va., June 30.—Dealing a harsh blow in an effort to exert control over the mine strike situation in this region, the Paisley mining interests today brought eviction proceedings against thirty-four strikers of three Elm Grove mines in Squire J. K. McLaughlin's court here today.

The proceedings were brought by the company in an effort to evict the miners from company houses.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 30.—Serious difficulties today threatened to prevent the strikers' hunger march which was scheduled to have been directed at this city July 6.

A National Miners Union committee failed to obtain permission for staging such a march, and the Belmont County commissioners announced that no mass meeting would be allowed on the Court House steps.

The march was planned in an attempt to attract attention of the community to strikers' needs, it was said. Whether other steps to obtain permission for the march will be made could not be learned.

CLUB HOUSE BURNED

MARYSVILLE, O., June 30.—A search was under way here today by authorities for the persons who set fire to the clubhouse at the local golf club. The building was destroyed. Authorities are convinced the fire was of incendiary origin.

Data Gathered By Group To Be Given President

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Wickersham law enforcement commission—most famous of the many commissions named by President Hoover—will pass out of existence tonight, leaving behind eight or more reports on various phases of crime and law enforcement.

Unheralded into existence to find a miraculous solution to the vexing problem of prohibition and other crime questions, the commission passed out unwept and unsung.

The elaborate and luxurious offices of the commission were being rudely dismantled with only George W. Wickersham, the vigorous 72-year-old chairman, holding the fort to clean up its business.

Declaring he was "darn glad it's over," Wickersham stoutly maintained the commission has made a comprehensive survey of the whole subject of crime which will promote beneficial results.

The passing of the commission, however, may create a new problem for President Hoover. The wealth of material gathered by the commission on light wines and beer, the Mooney-Billings case and other criminal questions will be given over to the White House.

Already members of congress have served notice they will demand that material upon which the commission based its prohibition conclusions be made public. Presumably the demands now are to be made on Mr. Hoover.

Wickersham showed genuine enthusiasm over the ending of the task, which has engaged most of his time since the commission was organized May 28, 1929.

To the end he flatly declined to discuss controversial questions, including reports of dissension in the commission over the Mooney-Billings case.

The commission, it was believed, may touch on the famous California case in its report on "lawlessness of the law," but the report of the lawyers who examined the case was not expected to be made public.

"Has the commission completed all it set out to accomplish? Wickersham was asked.

"Substantially," he said, adding that he hoped the work inaugurated by the commission would be carried on by universities and other agencies.

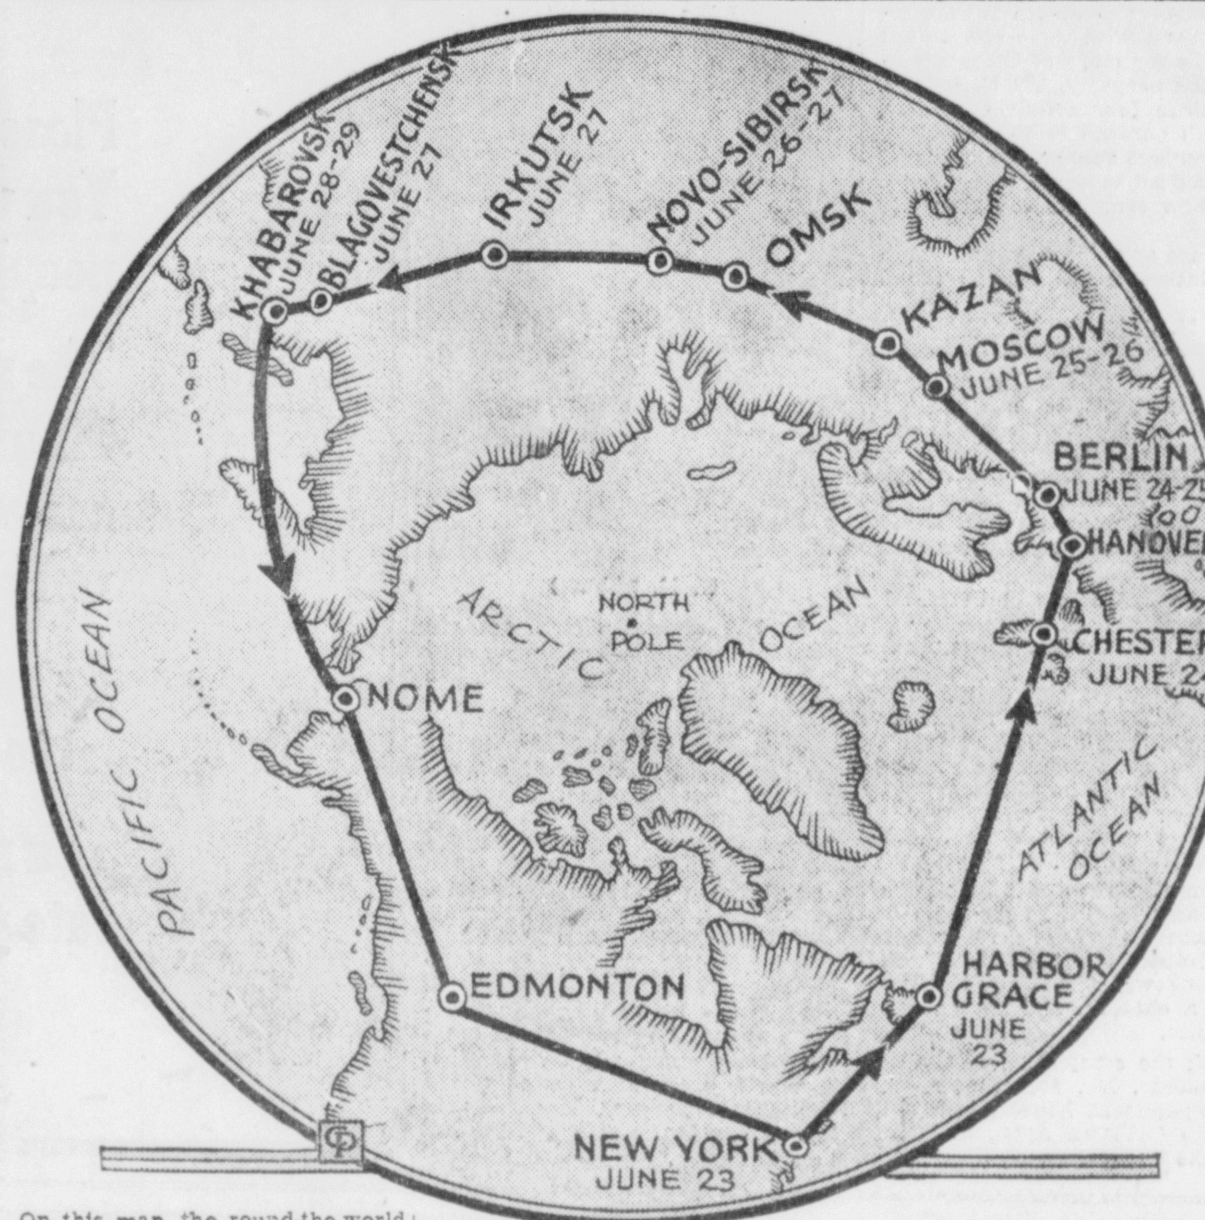

"I feel that much of the value of the commission's work will be in stimulating public interest and study," he said.

FIND NEW GLEW IN LIMA PROBE

LIMA, O., June 30.—A new clue of an extremely secret nature was being checked by county authorities here today in an attempt to solve the "perfect crime" murder of Thelma Woods, 17, and Earl Truesdale, 20, on May 30.

County Investigator O. J. Roush said he found a clue that might explain the motive and lead to the apprehension of the persons who weighted the couple's bodies with rock and then threw them in a stone quarry.

COURSE FOLLOWED BY ROUND-WORLD FLYERS

On this map, the round-the-world itinerary of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, in the Winnie Mae, is traced. Their flight has been carried through with the utmost precision.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Treasury balance as of June 27: $501,366,365.77; expenditures $2,999,540.90; customs receipts, $26,588,169.28.

SUNRISE DIVORCE LATEST

Decree Beats Restraining Order; Pete Arno Crossed-Up; Wife Gets Decree

RENO, Nev., June 30.—A "sunrise" divorce, a new feature in the weekly working of the popular Reno courts, today almost overshadowed Peter Arno, New York artist, as the highlight of the 76 decrees granted.

Mrs. Margaret May was given a divorce from her husband, A. Wilfred May, wealthy New York financial expert, while his lawyers waited for the regular court opening to serve a restraining order. Judge Thomas F. Moran convened court at 7 o'clock on the plea of Mrs. May's attorney that he had to catch a train so when May's lawyers appeared to stop the divorce it was too late.

Although Arno, the smart-drawer, had come to Reno to establish residence to divorce his wife, Lois Long, a New York writer, it was she that was given the decree, in one of the usual ten-minute proceedings. Mrs. Curtis A. Peters, Jr. for that is Arno's real name, in her cross-complaint charged extreme cruelty and cited instances of Arno's jealousy. She was given custody of their one child and under an agreement receives $5,000 the first year, $7,000 the second and $6,000 a year thereafter until she remarries. Arno will also pay $200 a month for support of the child, Patricia.

While the Arnos were being separated, the Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. suit was not heard, another conference between attorneys for Cornelius and his pretty wife, Mary, over alimony being scheduled for today.

Arno, leaving for Hollywood, said today that the Vanderbilt incident in which Vanderbilt claimed he chased Arno with an empty gun because of undue attentions paid Mrs. Vanderbilt, was ended, so far as he was concerned.

Henry Ward Beecher, Jr., son of the famous preacher, was divorced by his wife, Marjorie, for extreme cruelty. They were married January, 1927, in White Plains, New York.

Dorothy Adams divorced Porter H. Adams, nationally known aeronautic authority.

RECOMMENDS STATE ACQUIRE LAND ALONG PRINCIPAL RIVERS

COLUMBUS, O., June 30.—Recommendation that a strip of land not less than 200 feet wide on each side of the principal streams in Ohio be acquired by the state and its political subdivisions for purposes of flood protection and as a secondary state park system was made today by Dr. T. Connar, state director of public works.

Construction of low levees at the outer edges of these strips, Connar pointed out, would prevent flood waters from damaging private property.

Connar's recommendation was made in connection with a report submitted to him by the Dayton-Morgan Engineering Co., covering a survey of the Muskingum-Tuscarawas drainage area.

It was the opinion of the investigating engineers that canalization of the Muskingum River channel, by means of locks and dams and dredging, is "the most promising method of extending navigation from Dresden to Dover."

The report recommended that the state financially support this project, that a "valley association" be formed to carry the plans into effect, and that a "conservancy district similar to the Miami Valley conservancy district, be formed in the Muskingum-Tuscarawas drainage area.

Aviators Flew "Blind" On Dangerous Hop Over Frozen Waste To Alaska

Impossible To See; Flyers Tell Story Of Worst Jump

By RUSS MAYNARD
I. N. S. Special Correspondent

NOME, Alaska, June 30.—Weather so bad it was impossible to see outside the cockpit of the plane, miles and miles of ice floes, and temperatures which almost froze them to death, were some of the dangers encountered by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in their flight from Khabarovsk to Nome, Alaska, the two globe circling fliers revealed during their brief stay there.

"The flight from Khabarovsk to Nome was the most dangerous and hardest hop of the entire world flight," Post declared.

"Weather and flying conditions were absolutely against us all the way here."

"We left Khabarovsk and flew north over the Sea of Okhotsk, then followed the Kamchatka Peninsula north to Cape Navarin and thence across the Bering Straits to Solomon, making the flight from Khabarovsk to Solomon in sixteen hours, seventeen minutes, well ahead of our scheduled time for this hop."

"We experienced every kind of weather imaginable."

"I flew for three hours and a half with weather so bad outside the plane that I didn't see more than the glass on the cockpit of the ship in that time."

"I thought then I would rather croak flying across the Bering Sea than crack the ship down south after I'm almost home."

"We managed finally to see enough light to guide the ship safely."

"All the way across the Bering Sea we saw miles and miles of ice floes moving steadily northward into the straits. The cold and haze prevented us from going up to a higher altitude. We tried it once and almost froze to death."

"Our course was a little north of Nome in a semi-circle and for the last 200 miles into Solomon we flew above the clouds."

"When we came down underneath them we were about ten miles from the field at Solomon."

"Wiley," said Gatty, "you are sure some pilot."

"We made it and you certainly know how to fly that plane. I thought we were gone once, but I know now that when you are at the stick we are going to pull through."

"My, but we are glad to put our feet on good American ground," was the first remark of Post as he stepped from the plane.

"Sixteen hours in that bloody plane over water and no-mans land is enough for us."

He shivered a bit in the chill Alaskan wind and added:

"It's colder than a son-of-a-gun up here."

THE worst portion of the hop today will be 800 miles of bad mountain flying from the international boundary line to Fort Nelson, B. C. This area is practically uninhabited and without communication facilities. No report was obtainable on weather conditions in that section.

However, the fliers will have the advantage of encountering this part of their trip when they are comparatively fresh and at a time of day when conditions are most favorable.

From Fort Nelson to Edmonton, excellent flying conditions will obtain.

TO HEAR RATE
APPEAL JULY 15

Railroads To Offer Arguments Then

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The interstate-commerce commission today announced it will hear testimony on the petition of the railroads for an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates on July 15. At this hearing the railroads and those supporting the petition will be heard.

Other hearings, beginning Aug. 31, will be held for the further cross-examination of the witnesses presented at the initial hearing and for the submission of evidence by those who oppose the rate increase.

The commission requested all those who desire to offer evidence in opposition to notify it on or before July 20, indicating the general character of the evidence and the approximate amount of time required. Hearings probably will be held at places other than Washington, but the number of such places will be limited.

INJUNCTION HALTS ROAD IMPROVEMENT

COLUMBUS, O., June 30.—Common Pleas Judge Robert Duncan today issued a temporary restraining order enjoining Highway director O. W. Merrell from accepting bids preliminary to the issuance of a contract for the improvement of Section J, United States Route 30, on the Massillon-Wooster highway.

The order was issued in response to a suit filed today in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court by Andrew M. Smith, of Wooster.

BANKER ACCUSED

TOLEDO, O., June 30.—An indictment, alleging embezzlement, today hung over the head of Michael Szymanski, former teller of the Opeka branch of the Security Home Trust Company. Szymanski was accused of misappropriating $28,968.28 between Nov. 1, 1929, and June 9, last. Claim was made that he confessed taking money from the bank.

LEAVE ALASKA AFTER DARING SIBERIAN HOP

Begin Next To Last Leg; Almost Crash At Take-Off

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 30.—Their tired bodies slightly rested and their frayed nerves relieved by four hours sleep, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, American around-the-world fliers, hopped off at 3:20 a. m., local time today on a 1,900 mile jaunt to Edmonton, Can., on what they expected to be the next to the last leg of their record smashing globe circumnavigation.

Their trim plane "Winnie Mae" which carried them safely over the Atlantic and the dangerous Arctic passage from Asia to North America, thoroughly reconditioned by Alaskan Airways mechanics and looking like new, was in good shape for the final dash back to Roosevelt Field, New York, where they started their flight a week ago today.

The heavily laden plane just barely made the take-off safely.

The first attempt to take off was a failure. The plane was taxied back and a fresh start made. The plane lifted just as the end of the field was reached but failed to gain altitude.

Post at the controls circled over the heads of the startled crowd which had gathered at the field to bid them God speed.

Experienced aviators nearly had heart failure at the plane's behavior, but Post circling for three minutes gradually brought his ship up to the proper altitude and roared away to the eastward.

The tanks of the plane had been filled with 400 gallons of gasoline, sufficient to carry the fliers 700 miles beyond Edmonton.

Post and Gatty expected to reach Edmonton by 5 p. m., tonight, spend the night there and hop off early the next morning for New York. They said there was a possibility they would break their flight to New York by a stop at Cleveland, Ohio.

The worst portion of the hop today will be 800 miles of bad mountain flying from the international boundary line to Fort Nelson, B. C. This area is practically uninhabited and without communication facilities. No report was obtainable on weather conditions in that section.

OPENS APARTMENTS

P. H. FLYNN

All that is to be desired in the model apartment of today is to be found in the new efficiency apartments opened by P. H. Flynn at 119 N. Detroit St., this week.

The home of the late Miss Belle Gatch, which was recently purchased by Mr. Flynn, has been transformed into four apartments of four rooms and bath in each, and one of these apartments completely furnished will be open for inspection to the public Wednesday and Thursday, both day and night. Mr. Flynn announces.

Special features of the apartments include hardwood floors, hot air heat, with one large gas furnace, automatically controlled, furnishing heat for the four apartments, automatic refrigeration; shower baths besides a tub in each bathroom, with all bathroom fixtures chromium finished; separate laundry equipment for each apartment in the basement and a separate garage for each apartment.

The apartment which will be open for public inspection Wednesday and Thursday is located on the first floor and is to be completely furnished for the opening demonstration by Adair's Furniture Store. The living room will be furnished with a Charles of London two-piece overstuffed suite, including the davenport and lounge chair, an occasional chair, a Philco radio, writing desk, end table and other smaller articles which make a living room comfortable.

In the bedroom will be found a four-piece French provincial suite of birch, including the bed, vanity dresser, chest and small desk. A chair and stool will complete the furnishings of this room. The breakfast room will contain a breakfast set of modern design and the kitchen will be equipped with a Majestic electric refrigerator, a Universal gas range and other smaller essentials.

Room-size rugs will be used on the floors of the living room and bedroom and attractive curtains and draperies will be hung at all the windows, thus giving the apartment a cheerful and homelike appearance.

With the completion of the new apartments, Mr. Flynn now owns four apartment houses, others being the Oaklawn Apts., S. Detroit St.; the Central Apts., Second and

Mrs. Graham Hostess At Bridge Luncheon

FOR the second time within two weeks Mrs. George I. Graham, W. Church St., was hostess to a group of friends at a bridge luncheon in connection with the regular weekly bridge luncheon at the Xenia Country Club Monday.

Mrs. Graham entertained guests for eight tables of bridge during the morning and entertained four additional guests for luncheon. Prizes in the bridge games were won by Mrs. Lawrence Shields, first; Mrs. Charles Darlington, Jr., second and Mrs. Thurman Earley, consolation. The Misses Anne and Miriam Ashe, Nashua, N. H., were among Mrs. Graham's out-of-town guests.

Forty-six women spent the day at the clubhouse and enjoyed the luncheon served at 1 o'clock. Large bouquets of summer flowers added greatly to the attractiveness of the room.

Mrs. T. F. Myler was general chairman for the day and was assisted by Mrs. Austin M. Patterson, Miss Eleanor McKay, Miss Elizabeth Alexander, Mrs. Mary M. Meredith and Mrs. S. M. McKay.

C. J. FERNEDING IS CLAIMED BY DEATH IN DAYTON MONDAY

Death removed an outstanding figure in business and civic activities in Dayton when C. J. Ferneding, 85, one of the organizers of the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co., passed away at St. Elizabeth Hospital in that city Monday afternoon.

Mr. Ferneding, who served as president of the railway company until recent years when he was succeeded by his son, Thomas A. Ferneding, entered the hospital June 8. He withstood successfully an operation for removal of a cataract from one eye, but while still recuperating became ill and remained at the hospital until his death.

Active in varied business fields as well as civic and Catholic work in Dayton, Mr. Ferneding had the distinction of being the oldest alumnus of the University of Dayton, formerly known as St. Mary's Institute.

Surviving him are two sons, H. L. Ferneding, former judge of the court of appeals, and Thomas A. Ferneding, a daughter, Marie Ferneding Keve, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Thursday at the residence and at 9:30 o'clock at Holy Trinity Church.

MAYOR KANY, FIRST TO FILE PETITION IN CITY CONTEST

Seeking re-election for a second term of four years, Mayor Jacob Kany is the first candidate for City Commission to file his declaration of candidacy with the board of elections.

Terms of Commissioners Kany and E. S. Dines expire this year and Dines, who is completing an appointive term, will also be a candidate for a full four-year term, although he has not filed his nominating petition.

Prospective candidates for the two commission seats have until 6:30 p. m. July 11 to file their nominating petitions with the election board. The petitions must be signed by at least seventy-eight electors.

Indications are, based on the number of nominating petitions being circulated, that possibly eight or nine candidates may enter the race.

If no more than four candidates file, the primary election August 11 will be dispensed with under terms of the city charter, but if the candidates number more than four, a primary will be necessary. In that event, the four receiving the highest number of votes will qualify to run again at the regular November election.

FIRST CIRCUS OF 1931 COMING

WELL, if you don't think summer is here, listen to this—Robbins' Circus—three big rings of under-canvas entertainment—will play in Xenia next Tuesday, July 7.

Believe it or not, Xenia is to get a circus this summer. The advance brigade has arrived and hearts of small boys are going pitter-patter.

In addition to first-class circus acts, the Robbins organization this year features the motion picture dog, Rex, canine star of such movies as "Call of the Woods," "Up the River," "Danger" and other films.

Rex will be seen twice daily with his company of Hollywood movie players, who stage a scene with Rex just as it is recorded in front of the cameras for his picture appearances, giving the audience an idea of how pictures are made.

Included in the other circus stars with this show are the Ridding Grandalls, the Johnny Jordan duo, Wallander's ponies, Ruto's world renowned dogs, the Fosters, the McKeon troupe, Robbins' herd of educated elephants, clowns and dancing horses.

Doctors Say "Old and Young Drink Your Way to Vigorous Health"—Four Cents a Day

Physicians state 90% of human ills originate in the intestinal tract. This is a scientific fact. Beginning with indigestion, constipation, gas, stomach trouble, soon you have heartburn, neuritis, high blood pressure, rheumatism.

Doctors say, "Cleanse your intestines—purify your system of the poisons." And vigorous health follows. Here's the simple natural way: If you are sick, get a can of Dr. Parker's treatment. No doubt you have seen the famous orange-colored can in your druggist's window. A full month's supply costs only $1.25. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a glass of drinking water. It's palatable and agreeable. Without fuss or trouble, quickly drink your way to glorious health. Avoid heavy purges, nauseous drugs. Dr. Parker's treatment is natural as well as being as pure as sunshine. It works marvelously on children. What does the work? Here's the secret:

Forty years ago, Dr. Parker discovered a combination of natural vegetable remedies right from nature's own laboratories. In powder form these dissolve instantly in your drinking water. And as your system absorbs this glorious healing flood, your stomach, liver and kidneys respond right away—sour stomach, gas, bad breath disappear. Weariness falls from you like a discarded burden. Health blooms in your cheeks, and your eyes sparkle. You gain new pep, eat anything, enjoy life and health. Even long standing rheumatism and neuritis, or fearsome blood pressure respond quickly to this simple natural treatment. Start on Dr. Parker's treatment right today and know the joy of living to its fullest extent.

What thousands testify to, you may well believe. Be your own doctor. You know where your trouble is located. And authorized druggists who know and understand the action of this combination of natural vegetable remedies not only tell you they cleanse the intestines like magic and purify the blood, but they are willing to give your money back without question if Dr. Parker's treatment doesn't do all you hope or expect.

Dr. Parker's treatment is the discovery of a famous Ohio physician. It is new here, but is a household word in the East. Now its magic-like potency is in your hands. Try it now—you will be thankful for this blessed medium. Old or young, if you are not 100% healthy, Dr. Parker's treatment enables you to drink your way to new health and vitality. Begin today—now—results guaranteed or money back. These authorized druggists endorse and guarantee this marvelous treatment. Now if the experience of thousands, and the common sense of this treatment means anything to you, make your 7-day trial right now.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.—John 1, 11.

UPHOLDING PRINCIPLES

What would some university professors and others do, if they were unable to call upon the newspapers to get their cases before the public? Take the case of Dr. Herbert Miller, whose contract to teach at the Ohio State University at Columbus was not renewed, it is claimed, because of his stand on compulsory military training, with which policy he disagreed giving full expression to his opinions.

When his dismissal became known, he carried his case to the newspapers declaring that the real reason back of it all was not his stand on military training, but on account of statements he is said to have made about a year ago in India when he was speaker at a Gandhi meeting.

Whether there be any grounds for this angle or not, the fact remains that the assigned reason for his retirement was the encouraging of mutiny among students against military training.

Since the university professor insists upon bringing his Indian speech into the limelight it might be equally well for the university to come into the calcium of the public press and tell what it knows about the speech uttered in behalf of Gandhi.

The Ohio State University is granted a quarter of a million dollars each year from the government, under the Morrill Act which authorizes contributions to land-grant colleges for the sole purpose of conducting training in military matters. At the date of passage of the bill there was no such thing as "selective" courses and no matter what bickering on legal decisions may be evolved, there certainly seems to be a moral obligation on the part of any beneficiary of governmental aid, to make drill a compulsory course, until such time as Congress may see fit to amend the original bill.

However, it is said parenthetically, there is general belief in military training. It does not encourage war but on the other hand teaches discipline and obedience, two attributes which all forms of modern methods of teaching, have been sadly in need. No person is fit to command who does not first know how to obey, whether it be in war or in business. Besides there is no question as to the physical benefits derived from military training.

Surely if Dr. Miller persists in exercise of his rights of "free utterances" aimed at state and nation, he might at least have the good taste of not doing so while he is drawing pay from the taxpayers of the very state and union which such theories might undermine.

We send our boys and girls to college to become constructive citizens of the Republic and both state and nation would do well to promptly sever relations with institutions that countenance rebellion against the cardinal principles that have guided this country from a small group of staunch-hearted colonists to the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

MODERN LIVING

Adam Strohm's voice, addressing 3,000 representatives of the American Library Association, of which he is president, at the fifty-third convention in New Haven, is the latest to be raised in protest against the modern mode of living. He says:

"Nobody has time to nourish his inner personal life. The rest period vibrates with nerves and overstimulation, a state of mental tension, demanding another spurt.

"In this enervating craving for action and more action, the weary chase for a good time, we repeatedly respond to the crack of the whip and surrender our heritage of manhood, our mental freedom, our right to a balanced individual life of thoughts and emotions, of memories and experiences of yearnings and lofty ambitions—the ingredients of which are essential for peace and a personality."

All that is very well said. But what to do? Declare a moratorium on action for a year? Junk machines and go back to the "simple" life of the pioneer who fell into bed with his clothes on, exhausted by the physical labor necessary to the actual maintenance of life? And that ancestor have time to nourish his inner personal life better than we do? And if he did, has he not perhaps passed on a store of accumulated energy to us, his descendants?

Parsnips are not buttered by soft words. Neither are the doors of our squirrel cages opened by statements, however true.

3,000,000 YOUNG CRIMINALS

A speaker from Los Angeles recently gave a picture of crime conditions in California, which probably is not much different from those existing elsewhere. That which struck him most, was the youth of the modern criminal class. According to his figures, the average age of the convicts in the two prisons he studied, is 22 years, while 10 years ago the average age was 40 years. He claimed that 3,000,000 young men enter the criminal class each year in the United States, making a total of 3,000,000 every 10 years.

He was told by prison authorities that the reason for this great increase of young criminals, is that parents do not spend time in their homes as formerly, but have so many engagements that take them away, that they do not have time to train their children.

If the American people are permitting 3,000,000 young men to join the criminal class each 10 years, they are making a most astonishing failure of home life and education. The parents can save their boys from this black stain of disgrace. The schools also can have a great influence.

Figures like these make it look as if the older men, who are mature enough to know what is going on in the world, have discovered that it does not pay to go crooked. But the young think they can defeat the law and so ruin their lives by attempts to get rich through fraud and other misdeeds.

MENTAL LET-DOWN

When the young people graduate from schools and colleges, they are told by the orators of the day that their education has only just begun. Many of them leave these institutions with firm resolves to keep on studying. But the majority forget all about these purposes.

Unless they have a very distinct taste for learning and study, they settle down in their occupations and their reading becomes fragmentary. They usually read the newspapers, but many of them skip over anything that is informative, and read simply the sports, the scandals, and the sensational events.

For many of these people, a marked mental let-down has come. The farther away from school they get, the more the mental let-down develops. That is one reason why it is slow work improving our country and home communities, and why so many people fail to accomplish what the law and so ruin their lives by attempts to get rich through fraud and other misdeeds.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Certain streets seem blessed with the aura of success. There are thoroughfares from which whole groups of small boys have gone out to fame and fortune.

There is 116th Street, between Lenox and Seventh Avenues in Harlem—a block of weathered brownstones, past which the 116th Street cross-town surface car clatters all day long beneath the eyes of placid housewives at windows. It is like many another uptown thoroughfare.

In this block, some twenty years ago, lived five youngsters who looked and acted like most of the other kids of the neighborhood. Their names were Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Walter Winchell, Joe Laurie and Bert Hanlon.

It's funny, too, that the 116th Street quintette destined to have their names splashed on Broadway formed a group from the first. They were pals. But they had no time for youthful capers. Jessel never owned a pair of skates in his life, and didn't learn to swim until he was twenty. Mike Glynn, who now owns a string of 80 theatres, gave all of the gang a start at his Imperial Theatre, 116th Street and Seventh Avenue. George's mother sold tickets in the boxoffice.

Eddie Cantor and Bert Hanlon played the Imperial so steadily that they had to change their names every week. Cantor ran out of monickers, and, for a last ingenious effort, chose "Victor Hugo". Hanlon and Laurie are vaudeville headliners. Jessel has been star of many smash blows. Cantor is the long time Ziegfeld funnyman and Winchell is the columnist.

Gus Edwards, that seasoned connoisseur of fledgling dramatic talents, had every one of the five under his wing early in the game. "Hide your children, Gus Edwards is coming!"—his friends used to banter.

So much for 116th Street. Except that Fannie Brice and her husband, Lou, grew up just around the corner.

THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

WASHINGTON.—Some folk pronounce Al's name "Capoon," as in "moan."

Some pronounce it "Capony," as in "bologna."

"I pronounce it 'Capone,' as 'stone,'" said Chief Elmer L. Irey of the internal revenue bureau's intelligence unit.

Hitherto I, myself, belonged to the tri-syllabic group, on the theory that "Capony" has a more dago-esque ring to it than the two-syllable effect, but of course I take off my hat to Elmer as the foremost authority east of Chicago; so now I say "Capone," to rhyme with "groan," just as he does.

Chief Irey, who pinned $215,000 in income tax delinquencies on Al, is an interesting individual.

He has a clean-shaven, resolute face of the length of a two-block corridor of them—in the magnificent, brand-new internal revenue structure about twice as large a pile of marble and other choice building material as the historic but inconspicuous edifice which comfortably housed the whole treasury department up to a dozen or 15 years ago, when the United States became a world power and all the executive departments, outgrowing their old quarters in no time, began scattering subdivisions over the entire face of the District of Columbia.

Notwithstanding the elegance of his official surroundings, Irey is not an inaccessible personage—rather easier to see than the average federal functionary, in fact.

It was a hot day and Al's nemesis was at work in his shirt sleeves when I dropped in on him. He has an air of thoroughness and efficiency; while unburied, seemingly on top of his job every minute.

He has a clean-shaven, resolute face, but not unamiable face. I took him to be in his early 40's—too early for his hair to have begun to recede appreciably—and estimated him at about 5 feet 10. He is a strongly-built chap, apparently pretty fit physically; nevertheless evidently threatened with a considerable circumference unless he exercises strenuously.

Rather than a chief of detectives, which is more or less what his chiefship amounts to, he suggests a bank cashier (he is not pompous enough for a president), who once was an athlete and still plays a good deal of golf to keep himself in condition but does not quite succeed in doing it, though almost.

The popular idea appears to be that Al was hooked as an income tax dodger because that was the only way the government thought there was of hooking him for anything. True, it did finally hook him also as a Volstead law violator, but that achievement was a by-product of the investigation into his neglectfulness in the matter of income tax returns.

What I was curious to know was: Did Irey go on the Chicagoan's trail to catch him for non-payment of his income tax dues?—or did he go after him on general principles?

"We went after him," answered the chief, "because we had received complaints that he had not paid his income taxes, but it's a fact that zest was added to the undertaking by our knowledge that he was an all-around public enemy."

Was it detective work or a problem in accounting?

"There was plenty of accounting," said the chief, when we got our hands on the necessary figures to furnish us with a basis for it, but a lot of detective work had to be done before the figures were available.

"We hit the scratch of a pen to begin on."

Pretty blind then, for awhile?

"You bet it was blind," indorsed Irey, emphatically.

To some extent, was Al caught off his base, perhaps?

"How so?" asked the intelligence official.

Well, as an "alky king," it would appear that friend Capone must have been constantly on the alert to safeguard himself against interference with his business by prohibition agents. But was he equally watchful of the activities of income tax investigators? And, if not, may not the latter's task have been simplified a trifle?

In the past, he agreed, "I suppose the average bootlegger has, indeed, been more everlastingly mindful of the perils of bootlegging than of the perils of trying to beat the tax collector.

Henceforward, however, I doubt if he'll consider that there's much to choose between them."

THE CAUSE OF A MUDDY DAY IN SUMMER

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

ON A HOT summer day, when breathing becomes difficult and almost painful, and perspiration trickles over the surface of the body, we say the air seems heavy. It is, because the air is then heavily charged with water vapor. When the air is dry, evaporation proceeds rapidly over the surface of the skin and perspiration, though active, is but little noticed, even on a hot day. As strange as it may seem, humid air is really lighter than dry air, for a cubic foot of water vapor is lighter than a cubic foot of dry air in the ratio of 62 to 100. The air just before a summer thunder shower is excessively laden with water vapor.

Today's Recipes

Tomato Rarebit on Toast.—Two tablespoons butter or other fat, one-half cup finely cut celery, one-half green pepper, chopped; two tablespoons flour, one pint canned tomatoes, one-half pound cheese, shaved thin; one teaspoon salt, two eggs. Melt the fat in a heavy skillet, add the celery, green pepper, and onion, cook a few minutes, and stir frequently. Sprinkle the flour over the cooked vegetables, pour in the tomatoes, and add the cheese and salt. Cook it over a low heat and stir until the mixture thickens and the cheese is melted. Pour some of this mixture into the well-beaten eggs, then pour all back into the skillet, and continue to cook over low heat until thickened and creamy. Serve on crisp toast or crackers.

Creamy Rice with Prunes.—One-half cup rice, one cup boiling water, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, two cups chopped fruit, fresh or dried fruit soaked in water. Cook the rice over direct heat in the cup of boiling water. When the water has been almost absorbed put the rice in a double boiler, add the milk, salt and sugar. Cover and cook until the rice is tender. Mix the rice and fruit and when chilled serve with top milk.

Wilted Lettuce.—Two quarts leaf lettuce or the outside leaves of head lettuce, four tablespoons bacon fat, one-fourth cup mild vinegar, one teaspoon salt. Wash the lettuce thoroughly, and cut into small pieces with scissors. Heat the bacon fat, vinegar and salt in a skillet, add the lettuce, cover and heat until the lettuce is wilted. A little sugar may be added if desired. Serve at once.

Golf Named Best Game for Elderly

By Logan Glendening, M. D.

If tennis is the game par excellence for the young, golf is the best game for the middle-aged and elderly. Its pace is suited to the shady side of life. Its problems need not be decided suddenly, and they are just sufficiently complicated to possess the mind without fatiguing it. It allows for pleasant companionship and mild rivalry, which lends itself to a few jokes.

Golf puts no unusual strain upon the heart, but in the course of a round of 18 holes there is as much energy expended as in playing two sets of tennis. But it is accomplished so gradually that no unusual fatigue is felt.

It is true that we frequently hear of men dying on the golf links. And they are often warned off from playing on account of a rise in blood pressure or some such other reason. This, of course, is an individual matter for every person to decide, but most men I know would rather chance dying while playing golf than condemn themselves to a life of inactivity and listless waiting for death. As one such man said to me once, "I have always had certain things and enjoyed them. I suppose that if I gave up tobacco and golf and meat and salt I might live for or even 10, years longer. But it would not be a life worth living."

For those over 55 in a foursome is the best way to play golf. That makes it even more leisurely. You get a chance to sit down and rest on the tee while the others are driving, and the progress along the fairway is kept from being too rapid by waiting for the others to play.

Of course, in all this talk about old age, I realize that young people play the game better than the middle-aged or elderly. But that is because it is easier for them to train their eyes and muscle co-ordination. "Catch them young," applies to any sport, because the cerebellar pathways can be trained so that the rhythm necessary for swinging and hitting can be developed. One of the interesting things about the nervous system is that once laid down those pathways of impulses remain forever. If you learned to ride a bicycle when you were young you can stay off for 30 years and then casually mount one and ride off.

Psychologically, golf is a good game for the young because it inculcates restraint and self-control. And perhaps that is why the elderly take naturally to it; most of them have had to develop those qualities.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. R. M. A.: "I am 5 feet 3 inches tall, 26 years old, and weigh 144 pounds. I would like to reduce to my proper weight. For that reason, I would like to ask you the following questions:

"1. How many calories are in saltine crackers?"

"2. Would using saccharine instead of sugar in tea or coffee help to reduce?"

"3. Someone told me if I would smoke a pack of cigarettes a day, regularly, I would reduce. What do you think?"

"4. Which has the most caloric value—toast or plain bread?"

"5. How many crackers would equal a slice of bread?"

Answer: Your normal weight is about 125 pounds.

1. One soda cracker has about 25 calories.

2. Yes.

3. No.

4. A slice of bread has the same caloric value after it is toasted.

Weight for weight, it has more caloric value than bread.

5. A slice of bread 3x4x1-2 inches has about 100 calories. Four soda crackers have about 100 calories.

Pollyanna Attitude Doesn't Help

By Mrs. Virginia Lee

A young cynic by the name of Morena Raymond writes that she has a charming family but they are not successful because they are all so easy going.

"We are never happy for long," she says. "We go along nicely for a short space and then something comes to cause unhappiness. Life has been like that with us always. I suppose there is no remedy for that. There is no necessity trying to look on the bright side of things any longer. It doesn't help matters any."

"Don't you think a young girl has a right to be homesick? I believe in facts, therefore I say I am young, good looking and everything should look different for me. I have no girl friends or boy friends. I wish I could secure a position. I can play the piano well enough, but there's no work to be had in that line."

All lives are like yours, Morena. A bit of happiness, a little trouble, then joy again with a spice of bad luck. That's life! The trick is to enjoy the good parts thoroughly, and not to moan too much at the hard luck, but make up your mind that things will brighten again.

I think it helps to look on the bright side. It certainly doesn't help you or anyone else to weep and wail when you're down on your luck, does it? I think not. I've never found it so.

If you can't find work playing a piano or giving lessons, try some other kind. If you're willing and able and eager to learn, you may have difficulty at first in finding something to do, but you'll succeed in the end. And then maybe you'll make friends. A long face and hard luck tale won't get them.

Here's wishing you the best of luck and the will to do the things you say your family talks about, but never does.

Worried Sue: Your husband seems to think it is perfectly all right to insult you, but not the girl friend, doesn't he? What does this woman's husband think about the matter? Does he know that his wife is running about with your husband?

I hate to advise you break up your home and try to take care of your three children, even with alimony. Try to stand by for the children's sake for a time. Oh, these people who have no sense of responsibility or loyalty! It seems to me they are worse than murderers. For they kill the heart and soul of their mates and make their lives a torture to them.

"My Dear Miss Lee: I am in love with a fellow who does not follow all the rules of etiquette while eating, such as holding his fork correctly. He also has a habit of stooping."

"I would like to have him correct these faults but do not know how to go about it without hurting him. I have been going with him for three months."

Rita L.: You'll have to take your courage in your two hands and gently tell the boy about his little crude habits, dear. Do it some time when you seem very close to one another—mentally I mean, of course. Just tell him that you think he will feel more comfortable in society if he corrects these little habits which don't mean much but which create the wrong impression. Say that it would please you very much if he would change them and you would be glad to have him tell you about any little gaucheries he may have noticed in your conduct. That will prevent him from thinking you feel superior.

Posies Charm More Than Jewels

By Gladys Glad

A popular young French actress recently created quite a sensation when she appeared at her favorite Paris restaurant in an evening bet made entirely of fresh, blooming violets. The effect was very striking, and the delicate fragrance that emanated from the fresh violets greatly enhanced the charm and loveliness of the young lady's entire ensemble.

Fresh flowers are being used as accessories in all of the smarter resorts on the continent. And in this country the practice of twining fresh flowers in the hair for evening wear is gaining widespread popularity.

I personally am very much in favor of this new fad. In my opinion, a strand of rosebuds twined in the hair is far more deadly in its effects on the opposite sex than the costliest of diamond tiaras. Fresh flowers add to that air of wide-eyed youthfulness and femininity that we're all trying to achieve. Hard, brilliant stones are far too aging.

Another important argument in favor of the flowers-in-the-hair movement is the fact that the fresh blossoms impregnate the hair with their delightful fragrance. And if there is any one portion of herself that the American woman neglects when perfuming her person, it's her hair.

Some women find that their tresses develop an unpleasant, oily, rancid odor several days after shampooing. But there isn't any excuse for having hair that is anything but fragrant and clean smelling. If the hair is shampooed sufficiently frequently to keep it free from oil and grime, and is scented discreetly and skillfully, it will remain a most pleasing fragrance.

There are several effective methods of perfuming the hair. You may add a few drops to your favorite scent to the last rinse water after you have shampooed your hair. Or you may use a fine perfume atomizer, and spray

Xenians who get a thrill out of auto racing and who are uncertain just how to spend the Fourth of July holiday period this week-end need worry no longer.

An auto racing program, advertised as second only to the yearly Indianapolis 500-mile event, will be staged Sunday, July 5, by the Greenville, O. Motor Speedway.

Or, if you prefer, you may attend the first of a new series of races July 4 and 5 at the Cincinnati-Hamilton Speedway, on state route 4. These races will be under the official sanction of the American Automobile Association and the records made along those made at Indianapolis and other recognized auto racing courses.

At Greenville, fifty of the country's most daring dirt track drivers will compete in a series of races Sunday for a combined purse of $2,650 the largest prize yet offered for dirt track events. The winner will receive in addition the "Dutch" Bauman memorial cup emblematic of the dirt track speed championship.

Special arrangements have been made to accommodate thousands of people for the event. Seven races will make up the program offering more than six hours of excitement. Although the drivers will send their "iron horses" around the track at speeds leaving spectators gasping for breath, every precaution will be taken for safety and convenience of patrons.

The speedway Cincinnati-Hamilton has been undergoing extensive improvements and will be absolutely dustless for the races there this week-end.

Louis Schneider, winner of the 500-mile Memorial Day race at Indianapolis this year, will take part in both the July 4 and 5 races, even though they are of entirely different types.

Those on July 4 will be one-man cars and those July 5 for two-men cars. Billy Arnold, who was in the lead in Indianapolis until his car threw a wheel, also figures on being in the money both days.

Ralph DePalma, dean of racing drivers; William "Shorty" Canton, Detroit; Russell Snowberger and Fred Frame, who starred at Indianapolis; Louis Meyers, 1929 winner at Indianapolis—these and some of the other stars who will provide the thrills at the speedway Saturday and Sunday.

Over at Wilmington they are still trying—so far without success—to have the bases lengthened from forty-five to sixty feet for softball games.

Garrison finisher becoming a hobby with the town County Club softball m.

The Downtowners staged another of the var in the ninth inning of their crucial game with the champion Langs Chevrolet at Cox Field day night and when the firing finally ceased the almost unbreakable total of nine runs had led the plate.

The final scores 15 to 3 and the triumph of the Downtowners to first place in the National League. The Downtowners, who were the champions of the league last year, were the only team to have won the championship in the last year.

In the second of the double-header staged today night, the Graham Paints defeated the Downtowners 15 to 3. The Downtowners, who were the champions of the league last year, were the only team to have won the championship in the last year.

The Downtowners' struggle was a repeat of the excitement and punctuated by frequent hitting, particularly on the part of the winners, who gathered fifteen safeties, including two home runs, three triples, a double, Langs obtained eight hits.

Emerging from a batting slump, Bill LeSourd a home run, triple and single awaked once, while Bob Finlay a made three hits, one a double. Finlay hit a single and dyle for Langs.

LeSourd's hit, a home run with the baseruns in the second inning, gave the Downtowners the first tally one contest. Finlay's single and executive triples by Lunsford and LeSourd gave them two more runs in the fourth, but Langs squandered them in the last half of the fourth, scoring three times on a tie by Williams, two errors and Fin's double.

Jacobson opened the Downtowner half of the fifth with a screaming triple and we Frame fled to center, scored at the catch. Two more runs were added in the sixth, Finlay doubled and made the circuit on an overthrow of third. Huston singled, unforced walked and LeSourd singled, filling the bases. When Huston fled to right, Finlay scored at the catch.

But Langs were by no means through and they staged a four-run rally in the eighth to take the lead for the first time. With one down, Bell singled and Smith was safe on an error and all hit safely. Ruse made the sand out but Davis and Corr singled and Langs were out in front by a run.

In the ninth it was the Downtowner team turn to furnish the fireworks. Twelve batters strode to the plate. Five of them hit safely, two reached base on balls and two reached base on errors.

Higgins as safe on an error and single and Jacobson and McCurran clogged the bases. Finlay singled, scoring two runners, and the remaining two runners advanced on Eckert's out at first. Finlay raised a fly, scoring another player from third, then Prugh singled. Huston was safe on an error, Lunsford and LeSourd walked.

With the bases again loaded, Eddie Higgins put the crowning blow on the big bat with a long home run to deep center. Jacobson was retired on a fly to the third out.

Gibner's single, a walk and an out at first produced one run in the Lang's half of the ninth. Frame fished for the Downtowners at Williams for Langs. Minus the services of "Polly" Parrett, the Downtowners lineup was augmented by Ed Jacobs, late of Muskrum College, and Carlton Lunsford of the University of Cincinnati. Both proved big assets in the victory.

In the second game of the evening between the Graham Paints and Urbana K. of C. Lloyd Downey held in visitors to four hits, while the Paints collected eleven off Ruzmit, Urbana hurler.

After three scoreless rounds, Grahams broke the ice in the fourth, edging twice. Urbana duplicated the total in the sixth and the Paints went out in the last half of the inning when, with the bases full, Fullerton hit a long blow to right center, clearing the bases.

Only the first run counted, however. Kerns made three straight hits for the winners.

PLAN GOLF TOURNEY AT COUNTRY CLUB

A novel tournament between two teams of men golfers of the Xenia Country Club, will be played at the club Wednesday afternoon, July 15, it is announced by Steele Poague, chairman of the tournament committee. The teams will be captained by C. W. Murphy and A. H. "Sandy" Finlay.

Drawings to determine the make-up of the teams will be made by the captains Wednesday evening in connection with the regular weekly supper at the club. Drawing of names of all men of the club who play golf will be made alternately by the captains.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 30.—Though the leading stocks fell back to slightly lower prices in the early trading today, the list as a whole was dull and inactive rather than weak. Uneasiness over the final outcome of the Paris negotiations on the war-debt moratorium was reflected in the early selling wave, which forced U. S. Steel down 2 1/2 points, to 100 and bent the active railroad and utility stocks from 1 to 3 points backward. The cotton and commodity markets were also unsettled.

REST HAVEN BLANKS

WESTWOOD TEAM

The Rest Haven Park baseball team blanked the Westwood Merchants of Dayton, 16 to 0, at the Rest Haven ball park Sunday afternoon.

The Glass brothers, Lauris and Harold, will be the rival pitchers when Rest Haven engages a team from Farmersville Saturday afternoon in a Fourth of July diamond classic on the Rest Haven diamond, the contest starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Lauris Glass will pitch for the visitors and his brother, Harold, will be on the mound for the home team.

No admission will be charged to the game.

SHELEY FUNERAL

Funeral services for John Sheley, 57, who died suddenly at his home three miles northwest of Jamestown Sunday evening, will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. L. L. Gray, pastor of the U. P. Church, Jamestown, will be in charge of the services. Burial will be made in Beaver Cemetery.

AUTOIST IS FINED

Charged with operating a motor vehicle equipped with improper license plates Arthur Jenks, 46, Jamestown, was fined $25 and costs by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning. Jenks, police asserted, was driving an international truck bearing license issued for a Ford.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS THURSDAY WITH MAGICIAN ON PROGRAM

The opening attraction of Redpath Chautauqua week at three o'clock Thursday afternoon, when Edward Reno, past master of magic and mystery, will present a program that will appeal especially to the children. For the past thirty years Reno has been on the Chautauqua platform, and during that time has cultivated a host of friends who always look forward to his return.

An interesting lecture will be featured on Saturday afternoon's program of Chautauqua when Mrs. Adalyn Wright Macauley will be the speaker. Mrs. Macauley has had opportunities of studying international affairs and her talk will deal with America as viewed by the thinking people in Europe and the causes back of much of the misunderstanding which exists today.

As president of the Fidac Auxiliary, an international organization of women recognized by the governments in Europe for its World Peace program, Mrs. Macauley was granted interviews with high government officials in the European nations and was given every opportunity of studying the problems which confront Europe today.

Throughout her lecture Mrs. Macauley will give impressions of royalty she met in many countries.

A gracious lady with a graceful story is Mrs. Macauley. She knows international politics and politicians, international economics and economists. She has parleyed with prime ministers and princes, dined with queens, sat in on conferences of highest European officials. Her address deals largely with the point of view of Europeans upon America, and she puts her finger upon the main causes of misunderstanding.

Mrs. Macauley is past president of the American Legion Auxiliary, also past president of the Fidac Auxiliary, and holds a unique and leading position among the speakers of the day, and the women of the moment.

START REPAIR WORK ON STREETS; WILL IMPROVE FIFTEEN

Repair work on fifteen residential streets in outlying sections of Xenia was begun by the city Monday, using the county road machinery loaned for the purpose by County Commissioners. The streets are being hard surfaced and given a tarvis treatment. All other unpaved streets are to be oiled.

Completion of the project to place all unpaved streets in good condition.

City officials say the improvement work will be financed out of the gasoline tax fund in which $31,000 has accumulated by reason of an interpretation of the law which forbids use of the money except for repair work on streets designated as part of main highways.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in a recent ruling, authorized release of the money in the gas tax funds for use by municipalities in other street work, and the city had been planning to begin needed repair work as soon as the county road machinery was available for its use.

BOULDER DAM BENEFITS
MEXICALI, Baja California, Mex. — Diego Zakowsky, rancher in the lower Colorado valley reports an almost total absence of the huge mosquitos which every year had made life in the lowlands almost unbearable. This is the first time in the twenty-two years he has been there that the river has not overflowed on to his land, he said, and declared it was his belief that when Boulder Dam is constructed and the water controlled the monster pests will disappear.

Post Started Air Career Through Loss of An Eye

A Sliver of Steel That Cost Him Optic Was the Alpha of Wiley Post's Career in the World of Aviation. Third One-Eyed Aviator to Dare Atlantic.

WINNIE MAE HALL - WILEY POST - F. C. HALL

NEW YORK, June 30.—"Sweet are the uses of adversity," wrote William Shakespeare, the patron saint of heavyweight champions, and never was the truth of the line better exemplified than in the case of Wiley Post, who at the moment of writing is endeavoring to make Jules Verne's "Phineas Fogg" look like a crippled turtle.

Fate has a strange way of moving the human pieces on the checkerboard of life to attain its end, and the hand of fate was very much in evidence when Wiley Post, tool dresser in the Oklahoma oil fields, was struck in the eye by a sliver of steel.

It would be farfetched to imagine Mr. Post leaping with joy and quoting Shakespeare's famous line when informed that the accident would cost him an eye. But regardless of his feelings at the moment, it is undoubtedly true that it is to the piece of steel and the resultant loss that he owes his present meteoric flash to fame.

With $1,600 that he received as compensation for his disability, Post bought an old wartime Jenny, one of the planes that made miracles commonplace, insofar as every time a Jenny came down in one piece the event was something to marvel at. After taking an hour or so of instruction from a pilot, Post used his sledge hammer for barnstorming and became an expert at handling it.

The first modern airplane that Post ever flew was owned by F. C. Hall, an Oklahoma oil magnate, with a yen for aviation. The li-license when they found that Post flew better than most men who had the full complement of orbs.

Post had a nice little job flying Mr. Hall thither and yon until one day he got caught in a fog and turned over in a ploughed field. That dampened Hall's enthusiasm for the air and put Wiley among the unemployed. But he soon got a job as a test pilot with a big corporation and held it until Mr. Hall again felt the urge to dabble in aviation.

The plane which Post and Harold Gatty are now flying around the world is owned by the oil man and is named for his daughter Winnie Mae. Hall is backing the flight purpose of which is the circumnavigation of the earth in ten days, less than half the record time set by Dr. Eckener in the Graf Zeppelin.

It might be of interest to state here that Post is the third one-eyed aviator to make a trans-Atlantic attempt. The other two were Captain Coli, who was lost with Nungesser on their flight from Paris to New York, and Captain Hinchcliffe who, with the Hon. Elise MacKay, daughter of Lord Inchcape, was lost in an attempted crossing from London to Canada.

Post, however, broke the jinx and made it in record time. But as we set out to say, one should not take the fruit of Post's adversity too literally. It does not follow that because a chunk of steel in his eye brought him fame that every Tom, Dick and Harry whose eye serves as a refuge for flying cinders is going to climb to the pinnacle of success. There's a moral in the story through which teaches that the most painful trial may sometimes be a blessing in disguise.

HEAT WAVE RETURNS UNDER FAIR SKIES

Unmindful of temporary setbacks afforded by thundershowers now and then within the last few days, the hot wave launched a counter attack upon Xenians Tuesday, leaving the populace gasping as the mercury sought high levels once more.

Despite a refreshing breeze, temperatures had mounted early Tuesday afternoon to 89 degrees, equalling the high mark of Monday, and forecasters gave out the depressing observation that the weather will remain generally fair and continued warm Wednesday.

WOULD ENJOIN SPRING VALLEY BOARD FROM SELLING OLD SITE

An injunction preventing the Spring Valley Twp. board of education from selling three-fourths of an acre of land, allegedly abandoned as a school lot at public auction July 3 is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by S. D. Craig.

The plaintiff sets forth that certain real estate he acquired from W. A. Shoshon May 14, 1918, was formerly owned by the late Robert D. Poague. In all the conveyances of the land from Poague down to Craig, the various deeds make no exception whatsoever of the three-fourths of an acre of land deeded by Poague to the Spring Valley school board, formerly the Sugar-creek Twp. board, the petition recites.

The conveyance was for a school site, this being made a provision of the deed, according to the petition, which avers that the lot has not been used for school purposes for four years.

The school board is about to sell the lot, allegedly part of the real estate conveyed to the plaintiff, and unless enjoined, will dispose of the land at auction July 3, the petition charges.

MOTHER FOX IN CHARGE
PASO ROBLES, Cal. — Bob Stinchfield, oil executive, recently purchased a baby fox. He placed it in an improvised den. The other day he was astonished when, going to feed his pet, he found mama Fox had arrived and had the situation well in hand. Stinchfield is making an attempt to domesticate the older animal which apparently had sought out its missing offspring.

The Theater

All artists who go out to Hollywood make some comment about the Hollywood beauties and Willy Pogany is no exception.

Less bold than some, the painter-sculptor, architect mentions no names. He is content with picking the ideal Hollywood type.

Miss Cinema of 1931, says Pogany, follows this description: She is a bleached blonde; She has blue eyes; She is five feet, three inches tall, without heels.

She weighs 112 pounds (probably without meals).

The artist arrives at these sta-

that Josephine scratched him in a rage and that he was solely dependent upon his mother.

Taking Horace Greeley's advice, Chic Sale is moving his publishing house from St. Louis to Hollywood. It was this plant which broadcast 1,000,000 copies of "The Specialist." This work has made a fortune for Chic. In his best month he took in $76,000 from American lovers of homey humor.

Radio is allowing Jill Esmond to play opposite her husband, Laurence Olivier, in her first talking picture. Along with Mary Astor and John Halliday, they will make out the foursome of characters in Vincent Lawrence's domestic comedy, "Sour Grapes." Miss Esmond came to Hollywood from Broadway and the English stage.

tistics from a study of the fifty girls selected for Eddie Cantor's "Palmy Days." Mr. Pogany, incidentally, made the sketches for the sets of this production. The larger task of selecting the ideal Hollywood beauty he did in his spare time. It all falls under the head of art, anyway.

Pogany says this year's model beauty is leaning towards the proportions of Venus de Milo. She has a wider waist, less noticeable hips, a straighter back and broader shoulders than the girls Pogany observed when he was in Hollywood four years ago for Samuel Goldwyn.

Athletics he suggests, may be responsible.

Josephine Dunne, the actress whose marriage to Clyde Great-house, scion of a wealthy family, was the principal Hollywood matrimonial news of the moment less than five months ago, has now made application for alimony. Greathouse testified at the hearing

CROSS-EYED CONFESSIONS

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

He slipped and went crashing to the floor.

This may sound strange to my readers, but the only man I ever loved was a flag pole sitter. This was six or seven years ago when flag pole sitters were at their height. The reason my fiancé chose this profession was because he liked to appear in public without having to get up and give his seat to a lady.

He was married at the time, but his wife didn't understand him. She used to make him wear woolen underwear and woolen underwear is a terrible strain on a man who's trying to sit still on top of a 300-foot flag pole.

I was always worrying for the safety of my sweetheart as the air on those high buildings made him crowsy. Ordinarily, I wouldn't have given it a second thought, but he was a somnambulist and there wasn't very much room up there for him to walk around in his sleep.

When you know the kind of a wife he had, you can't blame him for hating her. It was in the summer time and he had been sitting on top of the flag pole on the Woolworth building for two weeks and was just about ready to come down, when his wife went out and hired an orchestra to play the "Star Spangled Banner" under him and he had to stand up there for three days longer.

SUFFERED IN SILENCE
But he was a brave man and suffered in silence. Of course, he'd have to suffer in silence anyway, as nobody could hear him way down on the street. He got good pay for his flag pole sitting and used to make extra money on the side. The government gave him 50 cents an hour for sticking a feather in his hat and using him for a weather vane.

It was a lonesome job and the only company he had was when he talked to himself. This didn't give him much comfort, though, as the wind used to howl so loud up there that he couldn't hear what he was saying.

There were no restaurants on these flag poles, so his wife usually prepared a five or six-day lunch for him to take with him, but she always put a couple of dozen olives in with it and it wore the poor fellow out bringing the pits down every time he ate one.

My heart went out to him one day when I asked him how he happened to take up this kind of work. With tears in his eyes he confessed that he was forced into it. It seems that his wife wouldn't let him sit around the house and the cops wouldn't let him stand around on the streets, so there was no other place left for him to go.

HIS WOES TOUCHED ME
This pitiful story of his broke my heart and I wished that flag poles came with rumble seats so that I could sit with him at his work.

Basil, for that was my sweetheart's name, had five sons, three by his second wife and two by her first husband. The boys had to go around in rags, but it wasn't their fault. By the time their father got through with a flag pole sitting job, his trousers were worn out and there wasn't enough material left in them to make pants for the children.

TELEPHONE COMPANY BEGINS POLE ELIMINATION IN XENIA

Construction forces of The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. arrived here Monday to start the company's plant reworking project in the heart of Xenia's business district to clear the way for installation of a combined boulevard lighting and traffic system.

The first part of the program will be the placing of 325 feet of underground conduit and 470 feet of underground cable in Third St. between Whiteman and Detroit Sts., in Whiteman St. between Church and Third Sts., and twenty-four poles and 6,700 feet of aerial cable along Whiteman St. between Church and Third Sts., and on Church and Third Sts. between Whiteman and Detroit Sts.

When this new plant is placed in service, the workmen will remove thirty-one poles, about 1,200 feet of underground cable and 4,200 feet of aerial cable, thus eliminating all telephone plant from Detroit St. between Church and Third Sts.

The job, to cost nearly $10,000, will be completed before the end of September.

OBSERVE HOLIDAY

XENIA merchants will observe both the half-holiday Wednesday and the full holiday Saturday, July 4, and keep their places of business open Friday night.

This was agreed upon Monday night at a meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association. The Independence Day holiday falls on what Xenia merchants consider the best trading day of the week, this year.

DELEGATION TO POLAND

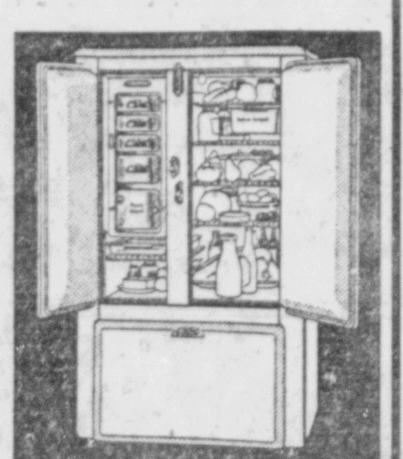

PITTSBURGH.—A delegation of 150 prominent Polish citizens from here are due in Poznan, Poland, where a statue of the late President Woodrow Wilson will be unveiled in time for services on July 4. Col. T. A. Starzynski, of Pittsburgh, an intimate friend of Ignace Jan Paderewski, the former Polish premier and noted pianist, will speak briefly at the exercises.

STANDARD RATING SCALE for Electric Refrigeration

- Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?
- Has it plenty of food and shelf space?
- Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?
- Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration.)
- Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?
- Can the freezing of ice cubes and

"The House That Makes Good"

Consider your Adam's Apple!! Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Consider the Garden of Eden. When that old serpent put Eve up to the idea of handing Adam an apple, he may have been doing them both a good turn—for where would we be today, ladies and gentlemen, without our Adam's Apple. If we didn't have our Adam's Apple, we couldn't sing, we couldn't even speak. For your Adam's Apple is your Larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. So—Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Remember—the serpent in the smokers' Garden of Eden—harsh irritants are present in all raw tobaccos. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" Process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say, "Consider your Adam's Apple."
